BLEAK HOUSE.

BY CHARLES DICKENS. CHAPTER III---A PROGRESS.

We were twelve boarders, and there were two Miss Donny's, twins. It was understood that I would have to depend, by-and-by, on my qualifications as a governess; and I was not only instructed in everything that was taught at Greenleaf, but was very soon engaged in helping to instruct others. Although I was treared in every other respect like the rest of the school, this engle difference was made in my case from the first. As I began to know more, I taught more, and so in course of time I had plenty to do, which I was very fond of doing, because it made the dear girls fond of me. At hat, whenever, a new pupil came who was a little downeast and unlappy: to be industrious, contented and true-hearted, and to do some good to some one, and win some love of I could: and indeed, I felt almost ashame to have done so little, and have won, so much.

I passed at Greenleaf six happy, quiet years—i nover saw in any face there, thank Heaven, on my birthday, that it would have been better if I had never been born. When the day came round, it brought me so many tokens of affectionafe romenbrance that my room was beautiful with them from New Years's Day to Christmas.

In those six years I had never been away, except on visits at holiday time in the neighborhood. After the first six months or so, I had taken Miss Donny's advice in reference to the propriety of writing to Mr. Kenge, to say that I was happy and grafful; and with her approval I had written such a letter. I had received a formal answer, seknowledging its receips, and saving. We note the contents thereof, which shall be duly communicated to our chent." After that, I sometimes heard Miss Donny's advice in reference to the propriety of writing to Mr. Kenge, to say that I was happy and grafful; and with her approval I had written such a letter. I had received a formal answer, seknowledging its receip CONTINUED. We were twelve boarders, and there were two

O, nover, never, never shall I forget the emotion this letter caused in the house. But of course I soon considered that I must not take tears where I was going, after all that had been done for me. Therefore, of course, I made my self sobless, and persuaded my self to be quiet by saying very often "Exther, now, you really must! This will not do?" I cheered myself up protty well at hast though I am afraid! I was longer about it than I ought to have been and when I had cooled my eyes with lavender water, it was time to watch for London.

I was quite persuaded that we were there, when we were ten miles off; and when we really were there, that we should never get there. However, whon we began to job upon a stone provement, and particularly when every other conveyance. I began to better that we really were approaching the end of our journey. Very soon afterward, we stopped.

A young gentleman who had linked himself by accident, addressed me from the parement, and said, "I am from Kenge and Carboy's, miss, of Lincoln's Inn."

I had never heard of such a thing.
"A fog, iniss," said the young gentleman.
"O, indeed, said!" said!.
We drove slowly through the dutie-t and darkest streets that ever were seen in the world (I thought) and in such a distracting state of confusion that I wondered how the people kept their sense, until we passed into a sudden queetude under an old gateway, and drove on through a silent square until we came to an old nook in a corner, where there was an entrance up a steep, broad flight of stairs, like an entrance to a church. And there really was a church-yard, outside un-And there really was a church-yard, outside un-der some cloisters, for I saw the gravestones from

This was Kenge and Carboy's. The young this was kenge and Galbay's. The young gentleman showed me through an outer office into Mr. Kenge's room—there was I no one in it—and politely put an arm-chair for me by the fire. He then called my attention to a little looking-glass, hanging from a nail on one side of the chimney-piece.

"In case you should wish to look at yourself, miss, after the journey, as you're going before the Chancellor. Not that it's necessary, I am sure," said the young gentleman, eivily.

cold—that I read the words in the nowspaper without knowing what they meant, and found myself reading the same words repeatedly. As it was of no use going on in that way, I put the paper down, took a peep at my bonnet in the glass to see if it was neat, and looked at the room which was not half lighted, and at the shabby, dusty tables, and at the piles of writing, and at a book case full of the most inexpressive-looking looks that ever had anything to say for themselves. Then I went on, thinking, thinking; and the fire went on, burning, burning, burning; and the candles went on flickering and guttering, and there were no smuffers—until the young goatleman by-and-by brought a very dirty pair—for two licers.

han by-and-by brought a very dirty pair—for two hours.

At last Mr. Kengo came. He was not altered; but he was surprised to see how altered I was, and appeared quite pleased. So Mr. Kenge gave me his arm, and we went round the corner, under a colonnade, and in at a side door. And so we came, along a passage, into a comfortable sort of room, wherea young lady and a young gentleman were standing near a great, loud, roaring fire. A screen was interposed between them and it, and they were leaning

They both looked up when I came in, and I saw in the young lady, with the fire shining on her, such a beautiful girl' With such rich golden brit, such soft blue eyes, and such a bright, innocent, trusting face!

Shammer-on."
She came to meet me with a smile of welcome, and her hand extended, but seemed to change her mind in a moment, and kissed me. In short, she had such a natural, captivating, winning manner, that in a few minutes we were sitting in the window seat, with the light of the fire upon us, talking together, as free and happy as could be.
What a lead off my mind! It was so delightful to know that she could confide in me, and like me! It was so good of her, and so encouraging to me!

to now that she count connect in the, and the me! It was so good of her, and so encouraging to me!

The young gentleman was her distant cousin, she told me, and his name Richard Carstone. He was a handsome youth with an ingenuous face, and a most engaging laugh; and after she had called him up to where we sat, he stood by is, in the light of the fire too, talking gally, like a light-hearted bey. He was very young, not more than mineteen then, if quite so inuch, but nearly two years older than she was. They were both orphans, and (what was very unexpected and emous to no!) had never met before that day. Our all three coming together for the first time, in such an unusual place, was a thing to talk about; and we talked about it; and the fire, which had left off rearing, winked its ted eyes at us—as Richard said—like a drowsy old Chancery lion.

We conversed ma low tone, because a full-dressed gentleman in a bag wig frequently came in and out, and when he did so, we could hear a drawling sound in the distance, which he said was one of the connsel in our case addressing the Lord Chancellor. He told Mr. Kenge that the Chancellor would be up in five minutes; and presently we heard a bustle, and a tread of feet, and Mr. Kenge said that the Court had risen, and like healthing as in the next room.

and Mr. Kenge said that the Court had risen, and his loudship was in the next room.

The gentleman in the bag wig opened the door almost directly, and requested Mr. Kenge to come in. Upon that, we all went into the next room; Mr. Kenge first, with my darling—it is 50 natural to me now, that I cannot help writing it—and there, plantly diessed in black, and sitting in an arm-chait, at a table near the fire was his lordship, whose robe, trimmed with beautiful gold lace, was thrown upon another chair. He gave us a searching look as we entered, but his manner was both courtly and kind.

The gentleman in the bag wig laid several bundles of papers on his loudship's table, and his lordship silently selected one, and turned over the caves."
"Miss Clare?" then said the Lord Chancellor.

"Miss Clare," then said the Lord Chancellor.—
"Miss Ada Chare?"
Mis Kenge presented her, and his lordship begged hat to sit down near him. That he admired her, and was interested by her, even I could see in a moment. It touched me, that the home of such a beautiful young creature should be represented by that dry official place. The Lord High Chancel, lor, at his best, appeared so poor a substitute for the love and pride of the patents.

"The Janndyce in question," said the Lord Chancellor, still turning over the leaves, "is Janudyce of Plack House."

"Janualyce of Bleak House, my lord," said Mr. Kenge.
"A dreary name," said the Lord High Chancel-

He dismissed us pleasantly, and we all went out, very much obliged to him for being so alkable and polite; by which he had certainly lost no dignity, but seemed to have guined some.

When we got under the colourade, Mr. Kengo runcimbered that he must go back for a moment to ask a question; and left us in the fog, with the Lord Chancello's carriage and servants waiting for him to come out. for him to come out.
"Well!" said Richard Carstone, "that's over! And where do we go next, Mrss Summerson?"
"Don't you know?" I said.
"Not in the least," said he.

"And don't you know, my love?" I asked

"And don't you know, my love?" I asked Ada.

"No?" said she, "Don't you!"

"No tat all!" said I.

We looked at one another, half laughing at our being like the children in the wood, when a curious little old woman, in a squeezed bonnet, and carrying a reticule, came courte-ying and smiling, up to us, with an air of great ceremony.

"O?" said she, "The wands in Jarndyce—Ve—1y happy, I am sure, to have the honor! It is a good oinen for youth, and hope, and beauty, when they find themselves in this place, and don't know what's to come of it."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SENTINEL.

Madison, March 31, 1852. Our friends of the "Torrey Troupe" arrived ere last evening, after giving a ceries of highly auccessful Concerts at Janesville. They perform his evening, in the Assembly Hall, and as public currosity is much excited with reference to the erformances, a full house is expected.

The bills introduced at various times, providing r the completion of the Fox and Wilconson Rivs Improvement, were referred on Saturday afteroon to a Select Committee, consisting of Messr-Peak, Worthington and Skinner. The third of the series was recently introduced in Senate by Mr. Conkey in the Senate, and there passed. Mr. Peak. he Chairman of the Committee, was satisfied with his latter bill, and ready to report at once, but the other members of the Committee wished to examine its provisions.

Mr. Peak reported the bills back yesterday mor ing, and, on his motion, they were considered in Committee of the Whole in the afternoon, and reported back, with a recommendation that the Senate bill pass and the others be laid on the table. An attempt was made to forward Mr. Conkey's bill at once to an engrossment, but as Messes Worthington and Skinner expressed their intention to submit an adverse report this morning, the bill was laid aside, and made the special order for the afternoon. The Communities being called at the opening of the session to-day, Mr. Worthington ubmitted a report adverse to the passage of the bill, on the ground that it would be a violation o the contracts let before that of Mr. Martin, inasnuch as it onables him to obtain payment for the work done by him before preceding contractor, while Mr. Martin's contract expressly provides that his payment shall follow instead of lead or ran parallel with those of such contractors. The ommittee specified no other objections to the

The General Banking Law was reported back by the engrossing committee just before the ad-journment at noon; but inasmuch as there was ome difficulty about the incorporation of several mendments, it was referred to a select committee, the reported it correctly engressed on reassemding at 3 P. M. Mr. Lawrence then asked uninimous consent to amend the 15th section so that bills secured by pledge of railroad stocks in part should be so designable. Messrs. Hoyt and Ramsay objected, but afterwards withdrew their objections, and the amendment was made. The bill then passed, by the following vote: then passes, by the following vote:

Ayes: Abbott, Averbeck, Beck, Bledgett, Botkin, Burnham, Cain, Catton, Conger, Cramond,

Nors: Bancroft, Barber, Barlow, Briggs, Burgess, Cate, Clemons, Cooper, Earnest, Fyffe, Gordon, Hummet, Hoyt, Maxon, McKee, Ramsey, Richardson, Strong, Toay, Wood—20. The House then took up the special order of the afternoon, being the bill above referred to providing for the completion of the Fox and Wisonsin Rivers Improvement. Various amend ments made by the committee of the whole were agreed to, and the bill was ordered to a 3d readng by Ayes 38, Noes 20 and read a third time. Then followed a discussion as to the merits of the bill, and importance of the work by Messrs Worthington and Shafter. In the course of the remarks made by Mr. Shafter, he stated that the restrictions in the grant by Congress were made at the instance of Judge Collamer, who was at the head of the committee in the House of Representatives, for the purpose of preventing the State from having possession of too large a sum of money, there being too much probability of its being squaudered. This is a different construction of the proviso from that one presented by also opposed the right of pledging the improve-ment to Mr. Martin or others, but insisted on the right to pledge the revenues of the work, and or the necessity of pushing on with the Improvement at all hazards. He offered a preamble to the bill, shaking off from the House all responsibility for the past misconduct of the managers of the work, which has rendered further legislation necessary. The preamble was adopted by a large vote, and the House adjourned. A good part of the morning was spent in comitten of the whole and thirty-two bills were sported back. A few more days as well emloyed will help us through with the work. The pportionment bill is still behind, however.

Good REASON TO REJOICE.-The Washington orrespondent of the Baltimore Sun, speaking of he passage of the Land Warrant hill, says:

The recent bill making land warrants assign able, has put the speculators in that article in high glee; many of whom will have made independent tortunes out of those speculations. The Land Speculators are the only class who are benefitted by this "bill of abonimations The public Treasury is defrauded, the Public Lands squandered and the best interests of the entire Northwest trampled under foot by this most niust and impolitic measure. And about the same time, it published a puragraph descriptive of the new Metropolitan Hotel, in which it was stated that there would be "five miles of storepipe" in the House, and two Mirrors "nearly one undred feet square." We think Gulliver saw nothing to beat that in Brogdigueg.

EMIGRATION AGENT.—The committee of the assembly have reported a bill authorizing the appointment of an Emigration Agent at an expense of \$3,500 a year. Retrenehment and Reform, low taxes, dc., will probably be the cry of the Whig Presses this Spring, and here we have an idea where some of the farmers tax money will go to, to enable non-resident land owners to sell their lands at a good price.—Watertown Register. The Register, in its zeal to convict the Whig Press of preaching "retrenchment" &c., and practising extravagance, scriously misrepresents a measure of the first consequence to our State. It is not for the sake of "non-resident land ownets," that the appointment of an Emigration  $\Lambda$ gent is so strongly urged: but to counteract the forts of other States to misrepresent the climate, soil and productiveness of Wisconsin, and thus divert the tide of immigration from this, its natural and favorite channel, into the marshes of Michigan, and the waste lands of Illinois, Iowa and

The Attorney General's Report.

We publish in full this morning the communication of the Attorney General to the Legisla-cure, in reply to the call made upon him for inrmation as to the proceedings against the Wisrongin Marine and Fire Insurance Company. It is much to be regretted that the tone of the docment is so little worthy of this high function ary, for, assuming the facts to be as stated by Mr. ESTADROOK, the propriety of his action in the premises cannot be gainsayed, and did not need the questionable aid of sarcasm and personalities

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S REPORT. The Speaker laid before the Assembly the lo lowing communication, to wit:

To the Hon, the Speaker of the Assembly : In obedience to the resolution of the 26th ins requesting me to communicate to the House over which you preside, the facts within my knowledge, in relation to the commencement and continuance of legal proceedings against the Wisconsin Marine and Fire Insurance Company, alluded of the 21th inst, I have the honor to submit the following:— Sometime about the middle of January last, in obedience to a summons from the Executive, 1 called on his Excellency and was informed by him that he had been considering the subject of the Wisconsin Marine and Fire Iusuannee Co., and expressing his own opinion that steps should be taken to enjoin its faither operation, and said he had sent to me to know whether my views coin-expressing his own opinion that steps should be taken to enjoin its farther operations, and said he had sent for me to know whether my views coincided with his. I told hum they did, if measures could be devised which would be effectual in accomplishing that end. He then wished to know if I would object to the employment of Associate Counsel—suggesting, by way of apology, that my time would be engrossed by dottes connected with the proceedings of the Legisliture. To this I assented. He then enquired whether I knew James R. Doolittle, of Racine, and if it would be agrecable to me to have him employed. I replied, that I was slightly acquainted with him, and would cheerfully acquiece in his slection. At this point Mr. Orton, who was one of the party, retired to the Governor's private room, and his Excellency immediately followed. The two remained together in private conference for several minutes. The Governor came back and sented himself by the table where I was sitting, and Mr. Orton soon passed through the room and went out. A private conference between the Governor and his Private Secretary, in a private ap atment, upon an occasion when his Excellency had sought an interview with me in the capacity, as I supposed, of legal advised upon a subject of very grave import, struck me at the time as slightly violative of the strict rules of decomm. When, however, Mr. Orton retired, I supposed that he did so from motives of native and characteristic delicacy, and perhaps at the private suggestion of the Governor, in order to give his Excellency a better opportunity to explain to me in private the character of testimony that could be brought to bear in the case, and to advise with me more fully and frealy in regard to the general plan of operations. Instead of this, however, his Excellency continued case, and to advise with me more fully and fealy in regard to the general plan of operations. Intend of this, however, his Excellency continued to observe a most profound and to me, mysterious, silence. Even two or three suggestions from motonehing the subject of our conference, failed to chest additional light from his Excellency. In a short time Mr. Orton returned, and the Governor asked him if he had succeeded? To which Mr. Orton replied that "he had not," and that "the wires were down." No further explanation was given. The hot haste to summon an associate for me by telegraph, together with what had previine by telegraph, together with what had previously occurred, seemed to me at the time as very extraordinary.

ously occurred, seemed to me at the time as very eximordinary.

It being apparent that my presence was no longer desired, I left the office in a state of very great uncertainly as to whether myself or his excellency had been rendered contemptible by the interview. I think that at this time in allusion whatever was made to Richmond or Blossom.—The idea of including them was first suggested to tre, if I am not mistaken, by Mr. Doolittle. At all events, whenever they were alluded to, it was understood that their prosecution was metely to preserve consistency, and that it would be regardas unfair to prosecute Mitchell and let these go free. At this time I expressed no unwillinguous to take any responsibility or direction in the matter, nor did I consent to let my name be used, as intimated in the message of his Excellency.—Nothing on the subject occurred other than what I have stated about it—I do not think I can be mistaken.

If this climax of official debasement had been proposed, I think it would not have escaped my, observation. I have no doubt from the manner in which that interview was conducted, as well as from subsequent proceedings and avowals on the part of his Excellency that "the wish was father to the thought." So far as this interview was absented by a counting the part of the the Milwaukce publishes sight Dailies, (5 English and 3 German) and instead of six it has sight Week-lies. I informed him that associate counsel was employed, and that I did not feel at liberty to continue it without consulting him. He insisted somewhat pertinaciously, and I told him to see the governor, and if he was satisfied with it, I would continue it without consulting with Mr. Doolittle. Accordingly Mr. Brown called on his excellency, who, as he informed me, perempterily refused to allow it to be continued; I told him, I thought myself, that a case of the magnitude of this, should not be continued as a matter of professional courtesy. I asked him, however, if Mr. Mitchell would give me written assumnces, that if the case was con-

I asked min, nowave, it are mineau would give me written assumances, that if the case was continued, he would either comply with the state policy, or do that for which these proceedings were instituted, to wit: cease to transact his banking business, and would pay all costs in case the state would discontinue?

Mr. Brown was in doubt on this point, but withdown to say whether in case Mr. Michael Mr. Brown was in doubt on this point, but wished me to say, whether, in case Mr. Mitchell would so stipulate, that the case should be discontinued. I told him I thought the State would be unreasonable if they did not. The next morning Mr. Brown called upon me, and informed me that Mr. Mitchell had agreed to stipulate, in accordance with my suggestion, I then called on the Governor, and informed him what had passed between us. He seemed somewhat excited, and declared he could not give his consent to a continuance on any terms. This seemed to me gratuitous, as I did not ask his consent, either in this or the subsequent instance mentioned, in the Cotton Ship Berl.—The ship reported as having been burnt in Mobile Bay, was the Seine of New York, which cleared from Mobile on the 16th inst., with 3,000 bales of cetton—the vessel and cargo were totally destroyed.—She was owned by E. D. Hurlbut & Co., of N. Y. The vessel was insured for about $50,000, and the cargo about $60,000.

Another Renor.—The Waterlown Register publishes, but "does not youch for" the rumor, that the Michigan Central R. R. Co. have purchased the stock of the Rock River Valley road and will and the real collegery to that letter, and found he was altered the real collegery to that letter, and found he was altered the real collegery to that letter, and found he was altered to the subject to the subject of the stock of the Rock River Valley road and will will be replied to the subject to the subject of the subject. I then found, in a letter from Governor Dewey to my predecessor, that precisely the same ground had been taken, as is contemplated in Mr. Mitchell's letter referred to. I called the attention of his Excellency to that letter, and found he was altered the real called the attention of his with its contents. Excellency to that letter, and found he was alrendy aware of its existence, and was familiar with its contents. I told him that I thought the public interest and public sentiment demanded that the same policy should be adhered to, and that I should deem it my duty to stipulate for a continuance upon the terms proposed. His Excellency informed me that be did not think I had the power to make such stipulation: to which I gave his Excellency to understand that I should furnish him an opportunity to test the question in such manner as he should desire.

The following morning I signed, and filed in the clerk's office, the stupulation referred to, and at the same time informed the clerk that no act the clerk's office, the supulation referred to, and at the same time informed the clerk that no act relating to this matter, done by Mr. Orton, would receive my approval. The clerk had previously informed me that some of the costs in the bill presented for my approval, were incurred upon papers filed in the case by Mr. Orton. This was my teason for the caution. The stipulation provided that all proceedings should be suspended, and good faith demanded that nothing further chould be done in the premises. Besides, if my official functions are indeed merged in those of the Governor, yet whatever facts may be gleaned from other sources of information, if resort be had alone to the official record of election returns, it is apparent that Mr. Orton is clearly not the Governor. His Excellency saw fit to communicate to your honorable body the intelligence that he has been informed, in a private interview with Mr. Mitchell, was about to take a trip to Europe. It measures are recommended in view of this starting announcement. Indeed, it is observable that in the great haste, caused by the extraordinary extigency of the case, to communicate this matter to your honorable body, his Excellency has omitted to make any recommendation whatever in the premises. If this feature, so unusual in an executive document, was not the result of more inadvertence, then that instrument can be regarded as nothing else than an official advertisement to the whole world in general, and to those who may be meditating an attack upon executive purity in particular, that all influences of a sordid or selfish character, will continue to be steadily resisted as leretofore. In view of the suggestion, however, the whole world in general, and to those who may be meditating an attack upon executive purity in patientar, that all influences of a sodid or selfish character, will continue to be steadily resisted as heretofore. In view of the suggestion, however, it may not be inappropriate to inquite whether the Wisconsin Marine and Fire Insurance Company is not about to pack itself up, and belake itself back to the bonnic heaths of its own native Scotland; and whether it does not, therefore, present a proper case for the interposition of that iemedial process recently sought to be rescued from the obscurity of barbarous Latin by law reformers, and, in plane English, denominated a witt of "no go." It will be perceived that by the terms of the stipulation between Mr. Mitchell and myself, the State is not required to retruce its steps—to undo any thing it has done—or to do any act or thing affecting the merits of the controversy. The only thing granted, is a continuance over one term, which will carry it beyond the time when the State will have adopted its policy on the subject of banking.

Mr. Mitchell, on behalf of the company, stipulates that he will abide by, the policy which the State shall adopt, of do that which would be the ultimatum of this prosecution, cease and discontinue his business altogether, and, that when a compliance with these terms shall render a further prosecution of the matter unnecessary that he will pay all costs theretofore incurred. It seemed to me, in view of the fact that this Institution has been tolerated for thirteen years, and has supplied a currency that at this time enters largely into the business affairs of the country, and upon the very eye of the fact that this Institution has been tolerated for thirteen years, and least public sentiment. In consenting to this most reasonable airangement, I would be allowed to adopt the language of the message of his Excellency to the fact of the country, and upon the very eye of the adoption of a system of State banking, that intense haste is not dema tain to my department to that of the executive, should not have been made a prominent theme in the annual message of His Excellency, or as to whether any insurrectionary movements vamong the people, in view of the pavages of this monster, have since created a necessity for such stransfer the people, in view of the ravages of this monster, have since created a necessity for such transferand as to whether all the purpose of a good conscience so keenly alive to the minutest details of official duty, would not have been as well answered by calling the attention of the proper departments of Government to this subject. It would be folly for me to deny that the law department of this State might have been endowed with an abler head—but a moment's reflection would satisfy His Excellency that this is not his fault. If the interests of my department shall suffer in consequence of my lacks or incompetency, it is I alone who am responsible, directly to the people who have placed me there.

In conclusion permit me to remark that if in any given case I had been induced to lay down the prerogatives of my official station in meek submission at the feet of executive power, and if subsequent facts and circumstances should justify the belief that the powers so acquired together with the laws of the land and the machinery of our courts were sought to be prostituted to the purposes of personal exprise or wielded as an engine of private malice, I should deem it not only within the scope of my legitimate authority, but demanded of me as an imperative duty, to resume the perogatives so temporarily suspended.

E ESTABROOK,

HALL OF TROIAN LODGE, No. 45 I. O. O. F. EAST TROY, March 27, 1852. The following resolutions upon the occasion of the death of Russell H. Mallory, one of the earliest settlers of Walworth Co., and one of th first members of this Lodge, were reported by the special committee appointed for that purpose, and unanimously adopted by the Lodge: Resolved, in view of the affliction which this Resolved, in view of the affliction which this Lodge, and the community have suffered thro'the loss of one of their oldest and most efficient niembers, in the person of our late brother, 'R. H. Mallory, that the following embodies the sentiments which, inspire the hearts of this branch of our brotherhood—

That in this, as in all other events, we recognize the hand of the all-wise Controller, by the operation of whose immutable laws, each separate item of human affairs moves, uninterruptedly noward to swell the final sum of one view terms.

onward to swell the final sum of one vast eternal whole.

That we hold it to be the duty, because it is the temporal and eternal intensit of the creature to bow submissively—as he hears the voice of the intinite One thus sounding through his providences, the sad barbinger of his doom.

That we believe the "Great Author of our being does not willingly afflict us; but whom he loved hem he also chasteneth," and he will finally overrule all things for good, altho our limited faculties may not enable us to comprehend the manner like Him who seeth the end from the beginning.

That we regard the fraternity of Odd-Fellov is a special instrumentality raised up under God, to meet exigencies like the present, "to relieve the listressed, to bury the dead," and educate the oraistressed, to bury the dead, and educate the orphan."

That we will cheerfully neet the responsibility resting on us, freely pledging ourselves anew, individually and collectively, to watch over, and one for, guide, guard and protect the widow and the fatherless, thus providentially committed to our care.

And while we would express to the bereave family and friends our earnest sympathy in their sorrow for the loss of a kind, includent and devo-ted husband and father, extending the offer of perteu nusuand and lather, extending the offer of per-sonal and pecuniary aid as they may need, we would commend them to a higher source than more human power for that spiritual consolation which the afflicted soul ever-crave, but which the world caunot give.

On motion, it was resolved that a copy of the foregoing, be attested with the seal of the Lodge and sent to the widow of Brother Mallory. Also that a copy be furnished the Western Star, Sentinel and Wisconsin, for publication. SEYMOUR BROOKS, N. C.

This book is compiled from notes made on the journey.

for the express purpose of duraining a correct and reliable Guide Book to the over-land emigrant. The want of such a wock has been surerely felt by all who have crossed the plains. Much suffering and loss of teams have been occasioned, for want of a knowledge of the distances from grant to grans, and from water to water, and for proper dirsections to find good carping places. This book contains address upon all these points in full rates as to the best reads

Ketchum & Comstock, HATTERS, 202 Main Street, Buffalo. We would respectfully cell the attention of our many friends, and the public generally, to an instrument we have recently imported from Paris,

"Conformateur," from which the above cut was taken. By it we can take the exact shape, and uncertingly fit the most irregular heads. Many can testify to the inconvenience, and annoyance, and actual pain they are subjected to, in breaking in Hats that will not fit them. By this ingenious contrivance, this very great annoyance is done away; as the Hats are made to the prefectly the first time.

Another great advantage is, by keeping a copy of the impression, we can at all times fit our customers from all parts of the country.

We invite all who desire a, perfect fit in a Hat it call and leave an impression of their head; and all these who take pleasure in witnessing the inventions of this curious instrument.

Having adopted—the Cash System (which all rations of this curious instrument. Having adopted the Class System (which all will readily acknowledge to be the best,) we are enabled to sell the best Silk Hat made, at the extreme low price of $4.25; surpassing any $5 Hai sold in this city. Our Hats are all manufactured by ourselves, and in offering them to our customers, we do so, with the confident sasurance, they are all we recommend them to be substituted. who do not wish to pay two profits upon a Hat, and are willing to save 25 per cent, to call and see us. PLANK, ROAD LETTING.

DROEGSALS will be received by the undersigned for the gradualion, superatructure and bridging of the thingow and Huntwills Plank Road.

For the information of non-resident contractors, it is proper to state that this road is intended to connect the city of disagon, on the Missouri River, with the hown of lituataville, in Randolph Co., Mo, and is about twenty-eight miles in length. The country over which it passes abounds with suitable timber, and is in other, respects for yorable to the cheap construction of plank road. There are, however, a few streams which williequire bridges of considerable extent.

The time for the completion of the road has not yet been fixed, and though it is desirable to complete the road assoon as possible, yet suiffeient time will boallowed contractors. Contractors may rely upon promptness in payments, as the means of the company are ample. 1.

Those who wish to examine the route will receive all necessary information from Maj. R) Walker, the Engineer.

Bids will be received until the fixer of June next, when it is proposed to avaign the work to the Isidiler of Bidders whose proposals may be approved as most fivorable to the company. Plans of the work will be ready for inspection first of Lapil.

For the encouragement of contracting companies, it is proper to state that there are two other plank roads in concemplation in the vicinity, both of which will no doubt be conveniented.
